This issue guides you through the entire wedding process starting with a detailed wedding planner checklist, as well as recommended reception sites to host your big day. To continue to help our brides with a smooth wedding process, this issue also includes information on Chicago area wedding vendors such as caterers, a local cake shop and a new survival app.

Included are tips and tricks from a workout expert, at-home recipes for facial masks, as well as a wedding detox with guidelines on what to eat and what not to eat before the big day. Discover a beautiful place to take your honeymoon and find tips on how to make your love last beyond newlywed years.

“Here at Chicago Bride not only do we try to make the wedding planning process go as smoothly as possible, but we hope to inspire brides to plan the wedding they always dreamed of having.” says Kari Polydoris, Chicago Bride editorial department.

In addition to the tons of tips from professionals on workouts, facial care and fashion, this issue also showcases gorgeous gowns from J. Crew, Galia Lahav, Moonlight Bridal, Clair Pettibone, Sabrina Dahan and Olia Zavozina.

This issue also introduces a list of items you shouldn't forget to register for, bridal appointments to make and when, and wedding seasons tips on how to keep your clothes wrinkle free. There's even something for the bridesmaids, such as alternative bachelorette party ideas and mistakes to avoid as a wedding guest.

Of course, we continue the ever- popular “Real Weddings” section, featuring four beautiful brides and their fabulous weddings.

Chicago Bride has also announced its upcoming Bridal Fashion Show & Expo, taking place Sunday October 16, 2016 from 11am- 3pm at Donald E. Stephens Convention Center in Rosemont. The bridal expo is a wonderful opportunity for brides to meet and have face-to-face conversations with talented local experts and vendors, featuring everything from photographers to bridal boutiques, DJs to registries, and others. A fabulous show with models displaying the latest trends in bridal attire, will be a highlight of the afternoon.
